A TREE WITH EIGHT BRANCHES

On 15 April 1660 the Dutch ship De Bonte Koe ("The Spotted Cow") set sail from Amsterdam with soldiers, settlers and supplies for the Dutch colonies along the Hudson in North America. Of the eighteen soldiers on board only Pieter Pieterzen, progenitor of the Ostrander family in America and a cadet in the army of the Dutch republic, was accompanied by his wife and children. Two months later the ship arrived off Nieuw Amsterdam, the Dutch colonial capital at the tip of Manhattan Island, and shortly afterward the Pieter Pieterzen family was among the seventy or so settlers at the farming community called Esopus, about ninety miles upriver on the Hudson.

In the previous autumn Indians had attacked and laid siege to Esopus for three weeks. In June of 1663 they attacked again and this time penetrated the stockade. Twelve homes went up in flames, twenty one Dutch were killed and forty five, mostly women and children, were taken captive. Nieuw Dorp, a new settlement three miles to the west, was entirely destroyed.

A secondary source states that "tradition says the family fell victim to Indians" but documentary evidence is lacking and the "tradition" was not widely handed down within the family. Whatever the case, the three children survived and raised large families of their own. Pieter Pieterzen², the Dutch army cadet's only son, married a neighbor daughter, Rebecca Taphagen, and to this union thirteen children were born. Eight of these were boys, of whom seven are known to have descendants carrying on the direct family line to this day.

After England took over the Dutch colonies on the Hudson in 1664, Nieuw Amsterdam was renamed New York, Esopus became Kingston, Nieuw Dorp became Hurley. In deference to English usage, the family gave up the Dutch patronymic naming system about 1700 and adopted the surname Oostrander, or Van Oostrander and other variations, meaning "from the east bank," presumably referring to a locale in Holland.

Today the Ostrander Family Association has the names of more than five thousand Ostrandres residing in the United States and Canada in the past or present. Only recently has the use of computers made it clear that the vast majority of these must be descendants of Dutch army cadet Pieter Pieterzen and his wife Trymje. No other Ostrander progenitor has so far been discovered.

PASSENGER LIST OF DE BONTE KOE

Here is a copy of the passenger list for your information. Carl Boyer has given permission to reproduce it.

Pieter Pietersen is listed here as a soldier. "Adelborst" indicates that he is a Junior Officer or Midshipman or a Cadet. This also shows the ages of the three children.

You will notice Albert Heymans listed. Later he adopted the name "Roosa". The Roosa's appear in our gensalogy through marriage. A descendant of Roosa lives in Sun City and another in Florida. In fact the family in Sun City has a clock that was brought over on the De Bonte Koe.

LACONA

Hay is being made while the sun shines.

Rev. Knoll has been on the sick list a few days.

S.D. Kirkhart is now located in his new quarters in the basement of E.S. Baker's building.

Nick Conrad's barn, just filled with hay, was struck by lightning Saturday night. No insurance.

Mr. Aul is having remarkable success introducing his book. He has sold over sixty copies during his nine days' canvass, and not over half of our town nor township is yet canvassed.

Laura M. Spencer, Belle and Orlo Hamilton, Lura and Belle Angel, Fay Bartran, W.D. and Julia Baldwin, Ira Morley, Annie Bissett, Mollie Graham, accompanied by Prof. Aul went to Indianola on the early train. We expect good work of the pupils, and wish Mr. Aul success in his canvassing.

Nearly all the schools of this township are taken. Belle Hamilton has the fall term in the Gibbon's dist., and the winter term at Hickman's; Jennie Beeman holds the Miller school (Sharp dist.); May Brown the fall term in Mr. Vincent's district, and also the winter term at the Walker School; Julia Baldwin has the N.E. school, so we understand, and Lura Angel the Weemmer school; Ida Cleveland holds the Shupe school; Anna Bissett and Mollie Graham have schools south-west of Milo.

----- CHURCHVILLE

Pat Walsh, of Des Moines, was visiting with his parents last week.

Mr. Bennett, road master on the Diagonal, was in town last week.

Harvesting is the order of the day. Wheat is damaged considerably by chinch bugs.

John Linnan, of this place, is at present in Pocahontus county looking after his farming interest in that locality where he owns a large tract of land.

We do not object to the Bevington correspondent of last week's ADVOCATE - TRIBUNE coming here for news if they will only confine themselves to the truth, but we do object to these long tongued liars sending in untruthful reports from this place. We would advise these smart Alecks to confine themselves to the truth before they attempt to write items for the ADVOCATE - TRIBUNE.

Using Census Records

DON'T . . .

assume the spelling of the name is as you know it now.

believe the census indexes to be either correct or complete.
Check the record.

assume the relationship to the head of the household is as stated.

assume the ages given provide a year birth.

forget to copy all data from the top of the page and to the right of occupation column.

forget to look over the neighbors. Look for married daughters, sisters, etc.

think that the records before 1850 will not be helpful. It will give an indication of the number and ages of people in the household.
